

EXTENDED CONSTRUCTED RESPONSE

The sisters grew their rock painting business by selling rocks online and holding a fundraiser.

The sisters business started when their dad sold their rocks on social media. The text states, "Mr. Meade put the pictures of the rocks on his social media page. People began to take notice." This makes me think that the business grew when people saw the rocks and decided to buy them.

Their business grew when they held a fundraiser. The author says, "the girls wanted to do even more. So they decided to hold a rock-painting contest as a fundraiser." This shows that the sisters wanted to be successful, but they also wanted to give to charity. The fundraiser means they can do both.

In conclusion, the sisters' rock business grew because they sold rocks online and hosted fundraisers.
